WASHINGTON, D. C.

ADDRESS
EVENING CRITIC PUBLISHING COMPANY.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Entered at the Past Office in Washington as second class matter. Thursday, Dec. 29, 1881.

READERS OF THE CRITIC, who intend witnesses, jurors, judges, court-criers and atl; have accused, borne false witness against, tried, condemned and executed, in the newspapers, the parties alluded to.

Of course, this could not be done without some authority, and these scavengers had that authority. They were not only given the opportunity to do their dirty work, but were actually paid by two members of the Cabinet out of the money of the people. Woodward, Gibson, Hinds and Cook were employed and paid by MacVeagh and James to abuse Brady, Dorsey, French, Saulsbury and other public officers and Star-route contractors in the newspapers.

While it is an admitted fact that James,

MacVeagh and their strikers are not men of exalted ability, it is not denied that they have some sense and a slight knowledge of law. The small modicum of sense and law knowledge they possessed was sufficient to satisfy even them that no court or jury would listen to the vaporings of Cook or the vagaries of Gibson, Woodward and Hinds, which they called "evidence." The The veriest tyro who essayed his first effort before a country justice of the peace would not have attempted to impose upon the ignorance that is sometimes found occupying such a position the evidence (?) that Cook, Gibson & Co. had collected. Trial by news paper was what was desired, not trial by

This was proven when, ignoring the grand jury that had been in session for weeks, the scavengers entered court by the back door through an information which they knew would be kicked out, but through which they could reach the tribunal they sought—the newspaper. To give themselves an air of decency in this effort, James and MacVeagh employed some lawyers of ability, and these went into the case with the full knowledge that the case which came into court at the back door would be thrust out of the front one, as it

But there is to be a change now. A really good lawyer, who is not a profes-sional reformer, is at the head of the Department of Justice, and a genuine business man and lawyer, not a mere pretender is Postmaster-General. These two gentle-men will not try the late Second Assistant Postmaster-General and the Star-route contractors in the newspapers, but will put the charges and the evidence, if there is any, of wrong doing before a grand jury, to le that body, which is alone competent under our Constitution, determine whether there is reason to believe that any of the parties who have been tried and found guilty by James and MacVeagh in the newspaper have been guilty of any crime that a court and jury can take cognizance of.

Attorney-General Brewster and Post master-General Howe will not continue the trial by newspaper. They will go where the accused parties have sought to be carried, to a jury. Of course the dirty tools of James and MacVeagh must be kept until they have unloaded their budget before jury. Otherwise Messrs. Brewster and Howe would at once be put on trial by these scavengers of the press and bar as anxious to defeat the ends of justice. They are too astute for that. Cook, Gibson, Woodward, Hines and Company must go before a grand jury, and having finished their trial by newspaper under James and MacVeagh must now prepare for a "trial by jury" under Brewster and Howe.

When this is done-when the vaporing of Cook and the vagaries of Gibson, Woodward, Hinds & Co., have been submitted to this crucial test, it will be seen how great is the difference between the trial by jury and by newspaper.

About the Same Chances. It is now somewhat doubtful if a change will be made in the office of the Public Printer. There is less probability of such a change than there was six weeks ago.—Eccaing Star (alleged necepaper).

Spaper). St. Elizabeth Insane Alylum, December 29, 1882.

To The Editor of The Ecening Critic: It is now somewhat doubtful if a change will be made next March and the weather be any warmer in July than it is in January. There is less probability of such a change than there was last year at this time, when it was very cold. It is warm now and will snow in July. A CRAZY INMATE.

The chauces are about the same for snow in July as for the debauched old Pub. Func, to remain Public Printer. But a dollar line is cheap for such notices.

FROM AN ITEM in an alleged evening newspaper of this city, it would appear that the gas company is seeking a daily as well as a weekly (quere "weakly") avenue of putting the advantages of poor gas before the public.

GUITEAU was put in the dock yesterday, where he belongs. If Judge Cox can do so without infringing upon the rights guar anteed to all persons on trial for life, THE CRITIC would suggest that confinement in dark cell and a diet of bread and water might assist the miserable assassin to a better understanding of his true position.

THE NEW YORK Times, Tribune and World are all making war upon Judge Cox ecause he permits Guiteau to prove to the jury and the world that he is not only sane, but a vindictive scoundrel. Judge Cox needs no defender in this community. where he is known, but it might help the readers of the papers named, to understand the animus of their present course, to men-

THE EVENING CRITIC, tion the fact that Judge Cox is the same judge who dismissed the "informations filed by Cook, Gibson & Co.

Production of Anthracite Coal in

A Philadelphia dispatch says:

"The statements of the anthracite coal trade for the year, so far as they have been compiled, show that the total production for the year will reach about 28,500,000 tons. There may be a week's suspension in January, but after that it is thought the domand will be such as to make steady work imperative. Thirty million tons is the amount calculated upon as the production of the year 1882, and with this in view preparations are being actively pursued in all the anthracite producing regions.

Stonewall Jackson's Daughter at a receiving callers New Year's day, will please notify this office officially, in order to secure publication in The Critic on Saturday next. We intend to make such announcements only as are sent to this office.

Trial by Jury.

A number of gentlemen of more or less prominence have been for some months on trial by newspaper. Certain brigands of the press—no, we should have said "scavengers" of the press—and bar have placed them on trial. They have been accusers, witnesses, jurors, judges, court-criers and Americans destring aristocratic titles may ae pleased to know where they are for sale, and at what prices. The figures are given by Chambers Journal, and there is an agent in London who conducts the business. A choice of three Spanish orders, conferring the title of count, is offered for $10,000, the only qualification necessary on the part of the purchaser being "an eminent standing in his own country." It may be presumed that the inquiry on that point is not severe. The sultan of Turkey will make you a chevaller for $125. You may become an earl, of the sort created by the little republic of San Marino, by paying $3,750, or a bar on for $584. Secular dignities by the pope are represented by the Journal to be in the market. To become a count from this source costs $5,000. It is also said that in Bussia, Portugal, and the German States, though the governments do not barter away titles directly, the roundabout payment of fees to officials will produce satisfactory results.

Genid's Southwestern system of railway has a gigantic lengthwise stretch. The combined roads reach 5,180 miles, of which 1,123 miles have been built this year, as follows: Texas Pacific, 425 miles: International & Grest Northern, 153 miles: Iron Mountain, 50 miles: New Orleans Pacific, 250 miles; Missouri, Kansas & Texas, 130 miles; Missouri, Kansas & Texas, 130 miles; Missouri, Fandic & Central Branch (Kansas), 115 miles. There are now under process of construction 475 miles of additional track. When this great Southern network shall have been brought into harmonious activity and the Northern Pacific also completed the monopoly in trans-continental carriage will soon be brought to an end.
